Management Commentary

The trust underperformed its benchmark during September. The key negative contributor was Indivior, a producer of pharmaceutical drugs, which reacted poorly to a ruling by a US court that a competitor company is not infringing its patents. Our holding in Carnival, a cruise operating company, also detracted from returns as it was feared that the hurricanes that ravaged the Caribbean would lead to a fall in bookings. WHSmith was one of the largest positive contributors: the share price rose strongly in the wake of a well-received trading statement at the end of August, in which the company spoke of strong performance from its shops in airports and railway stations.
